

ABSTRACT

To provide an environment-compliant image display system and program, the system is provided with an environmental correction processing section for correcting an LUT in a 3D-LUT storage section, thus correcting colors, and a γ correction section for correcting γ values in a 1D-LUT storage section, thus correcting brightness, based on environmental information that has been measured by a colored-light sensor.